Sunny skies, glistening white sand and parking right on the beach. For many, that's what makes Myrtle Beach such a sought-after destination. But for Coast to Coast members, it's only part of the equation. The rest is Briarcliffe RV Resort, a Coast Deluxe property on the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway with easy access to Myrtle Beach's Grand Strand.

On the resort's Facebook page, Barbara Hurley names Briarcliffe "the best campground in Myrtle Beach," punctuated by not one but 10 exclamation points. Amy Stricklin's Facebook post calls Briarcliffe "a wonderful place to camp—our home away from home!"

With recommendations like that, it should come as no surprise that Briarcliffe's a popular place to stay, and advance reservations are a must during peak season.

Pass through Briarcliffe's gated entrance, and start your visit with a drive down the paved lanes to your campsite, complete with a concrete pad, a patio and a streetlight for added security. Briarcliffe provides 30- and 50-amp electrical service at each site, plus water, sewer and 68-channel cable hookups. Wi-Fi is available for an additional fee.

Two tidy bathhouses welcome guests with tiled hot-water facilities and private dressing areas in each shower. You'll also find a pair of centrally located laundry rooms, as well as a handy general store with RV supplies, ice cream, caps and T-shirts.

Take the family out for a round of mini-golf on the 18-hole course or play a game of shuffleboard, basketball or horseshoes. There's also a playground and a private pond. The resort's 85-foot outdoor pool is the place to swim laps or just cool off. Then recline in a poolside lounge chair and enjoy the panoramic view of the Intracoastal Waterway.

Weekly get-togethers at Briarcliffe range from ice-cream socials to Pass the Trash card games on Tuesday, free bingo on Wednesday and a Saturday breakfast. All denominations gather in the recreation hall on Sunday for the weekly church service. Other scheduled activities include cookouts, line dancing, putt-putt tournaments and monthly yard sales. To see what's happening during your visit, check the schedule posted in the office, the clubhouse and the bathhouses, as well as the resort's website.

Within easy walking distance of this memorable Myrtle Beach resort, you'll find shops, restaurants and nightclubs. A few steps further, and you're making footprints in the sand on the famous Grand Strand.
