Colorado Heights Camping Resort — park your rig with a view of Pikes Peak

The views aren't everything at Colorado Heights Camping Resort, but they're certainly a big draw to this beautiful resort located in Monument, Colorado. For those who would like more than a glance at the 14,000-foot-high Pikes Peak, a 30-minute drive will get you to the base of the famous mountain. About 15,000 people a year attempt to climb Pikes Peak on foot. The 13-mile trail begins at the base of Pikes Peak in Manitou Springs.

Genealogy is another reason you may want to visit Colorado Heights Camping Resort in Monument, Colorado. Two generations of the Biggs family have lovingly cared for and made improvements on the 28 acres, which are pine-tree covered and located within sight of the Rocky Mountains.

"When my husband's parents retired, Richard and I decided to remain," says Stacey Biggs. "The campground is a part of our family and we weren't quite ready to let it go. We also have a great staff that has lots of activities to do throughout the week. Overall, it's a great experience."

This campground is located in a beautiful area that provides excellent accommodations and many activities. Pull your rig into one of the full hook-up sites nestled among beautiful pine trees. Don't forget to pack your fishing gear because there's a private fishing pond. Both young and old will enjoy playing putt-putt, taking a dip in the swimming pool and Jacuzzi, and visiting the recreation room.

If you need a little more stimulation, visit the resort's website and plan your visit during one of the many theme weekends. Enjoy everything from Fiesta Weekend, Blast from the Past Weekend, to Hawaiian Weekend, and Redneck Weekend.
